

A Channeled Message From Spirit: Death Doesn't Erase Who We Are

---

For Psychic Perspectives Podcast Episode 124:

Life Lessons Learned Through Mediumship

Life Lesson #2 – Death Doesn't Erase Who We Are

YouTube Episode Link: https://youtu.be/E\_VdKOEUz4A

Channeled by Carol Geiler

The life that you are living is one that comes with you. While the body itself and the experience that you are living in this dimension will seemingly drop away, the essence of your consciousness is in you now and the essence of that consciousness will continue as you move into this (spiritual) realm.

We (in spirit) are not here to tell you that life will be perfect when you arrive, but we will welcome you with open and loving arms and will assist you on your journey to whatever the next level or step is, based on your personal choices. We and Source (God) do not dictate the next steps, the next levels, or what it is that you wish to overcome. These are for you to decide.

Some arrive in the spiritual realms joyful happy and proud that they are free of the body and are able to once again be their young and joyful selves. We applaud these experiences, for the life that you have just lived has been precious and sacred and you should arrive here and take joy and pride in that experience. Just as a parent seeks to give their children joyful childhood experiences, the Source and we in spirit want you to have the best possible life, and so when you arrive we want you to celebrate that life.

We, or should we the Source, shall at some point ask you to evaluate your life. We in the spiritual realms are being requested by the Source to ask you to do these things for your highest good. When you examine the life, when you are ready, you will be able to evaluate those things that you did well, those things that need improvement, those things for which you are accountable. There is no punishment, but in the accountability you begin to understand the greater lessons at play so that you may continue to evolve and grow and move your consciousness forward into its next joyful experiences.

We here in spirit would like to assure you that life is not perfect for us either. While some of us have advanced and are better at managing our issues and our concerns, we also struggle with our own growth, with our own progression. For it is a never-ending journey to return ourselves back to the vastness of Source, even while knowing that we will never be the fullness of Source. This is the joy of consciousness in that it continues to expand on and on, ever moving forward joyfully gleefully, but also striving to understand, to become, and to seek to understand the vastness that is the Source.

We, in spirit, may feel as if we exude more love, more knowledge, and more understanding, for we exist in a greater place of clarity. This is no different than a parent who understands what the child is asking, and as a parent seeks to give their best possible most loving advice. We here in spirit, however, acknowledge that we too have limitations, expectations, and agendas. We hope however, that you will understand that as you connect with more advanced and higher beings of consciousness that they are here to represent for you the best and highest of their possible good.

We understand that people fear connections with spirit and these may sometimes be well-founded. For not all people have connections that are positive. But we want to assure you that when one turns to the Source for guidance and clarity and understanding, they are seeking the pureness of all that is, and in that request, they shall be answered. This again will come in loving forms and it may come in terms of loving spirits who can best shine a light on those initial questions and requests.